

Euroculture offers students

- » Enrollment over two years (4 semesters) in a Master's course (120 ECTS) which has been recognised by the European Commission as an »Erasmus Mundus Master of Excellence«
- » A transdisciplinary approach to research
- » The opportunity to study in an international joint degree-programme within a consortium of eight European and four non-European universities
- » The chance to learn other languages, engage in intercultural dialogue and experience different cultural practices
- » The possibility to obtain an Erasmus Mundus scholarship for the whole course of studies.

» As a project manager at the Schwarzkopf Stiftung »Junges Europa« I am working in an international team with colleagues from all over Europe. Working in this culturally diverse environment I am profiting a great deal from my Euroculture experience. During various group assignments I learned to value different approaches to academic writing as well as organizational tasks as source of creativity. «

Viviane Otto, Germany (Alumna)

Göttingen – an excellent place to study

- » An internationally renowned and top-ranked university with a strong focus on research-based teaching
- » A city linked to 45 Nobel Prize Laureates
- » Well-coordinated personal guidance by counselors and supervisors
- » One of the largest collection of books in Germany held in 174 institute and faculty libraries
- » Everything you need within walking distance
- » A network of volunteers to assist students in daily challenges
- » A broad spectrum of leisure and recreation facilities.

Admission requirements

We look forward to applications from students who have completed their BA/BSc studies in a discipline of relevance to Euroculture and can provide proof of their English proficiency.

For more information on the deadlines, admission requirements and tuition fees, please refer to the Programme's web-pages:

www.uni-goettingen.de/euroculture
www.euroculturemaster.eu

For enquiries regarding the content of the Programme:
Erasmus Mundus Programme Euroculture

Georg-August-Universität Göttingen
Platz der Göttinger Sieben 3,
Oeconomicum 0.123
37073 Göttingen, Germany
Tel.: +49 551 39-22381
E-Mail: eurocult@uni-goettingen.de
Facebook Page: Euroculture Goettingen

Erasmus Mundus Master of Arts
EUROCULTURE

© 2014 Georg-August-Universität Göttingen · Öffentlichkeitsarbeit · Fotos: EuCu + Uni Goe · Gestaltung: Rothe Grafik

GEORG-AUGUST-UNIVERSITÄT GÖTTINGEN

Erasmus Mundus
Programme Euroculture:
Europe in the Wider World

The Euroculture Programme qualifies students to analyse various dimensions of the European integration processes in a global context and to undertake an elaborate study on the past, present and future of cultural, historical and political developments in Europe.

Why study Euroculture?

In the Euroculture Programme, students acquire practical skills and interpersonal competences, which are based on a thorough and problem-oriented understanding of crucial topics and developments in Europe.

In addition to a comprehensive knowledge of European matters, students master specific practical competences, such as project management, intercultural communication, as well as research and professional project proposal preparation.

» Euroculture is certainly an extraordinary Master's programme of a very high excellence. It is hard to compare it with any similar Master, not only because it possesses prestigious formal accreditations, but also because of the spirit of community it creates among students and professors as well as its unique opportunities for studies, research and mobility that are offered to the participants. «

Kiril Zekin, Bulgaria (Alumnus)

Because of its multidisciplinary approach, the Euroculture Programme stands out from many other European and Regional Study programmes. Ever since Euroculture was established in 1999, it has been used as a way of reflecting in an interdisciplinary manner on the many different expressions and manifestations of identity. This approach focuses on the (self-)understandings of political entities, social groups and individuals, both within and beyond Europe.

The Euroculture Programme is an inter-university project. Students spend the first semester at Georg-August-Universität Göttingen. In the second semester they move to one of the partner universities of the Euroculture consortium:

- » Rijksuniversiteit Groningen (Netherlands)
- » Universidad de Deusto (Spain)
- » Uniwersytet Jagiello ski w Krakowie (Poland)
- » Univerzita Palackého v Olomouci (Czech Republic)
- » Université de Strasbourg (France)
- » Università degli Studi di Udine (Italy)
- » Uppsala Universitet (Sweden).

In the third semester students can either choose a professional track (internship), or a research track at one of the Euroculture consortium universities based on the student's research and/or professional interests.

Our non-European partner universities for the research track are:

- » University of Pune (India)
- » Indiana University (USA)
- » University of Osaka (Japan)
- » Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México.

Mandatory mobility between two or more consortium universities gives students the chance to gain diverse academic and personal experiences. This develops the students' level of intercultural competence, enables them to establish broad professional networks and increases their chances on the global job market.

Euroculture enables students to

- » Conduct research on European political, cultural and social integration processes in their different dimensions
- » Study Europe's relations and mutual exchanges with the wider world

- » Pursue a professional or research track in order to acquire relevant professional skills and competencies or deepen their research skills and theoretical knowledge
- » Participate in an international summer school (Intensive Programme) for seven days
- » Attend public lectures and seminars by high-profile guest-speakers from around the world.

» The education I received with the Euroculture Programme prepared me to have the critical thinking skills and unconventional problem solving abilities that the workforce today craves. I was exposed to so many cultures, ways of thinking, and styles of working, which allowed me to gain the core skills I need to be a successful leader and manager in the future. «

Salena-Lorine Lee, USA (Alumna)

Opportunities and perspectives

The Euroculture Programme prepares students to work in European, international or national contexts. It also provides skills and qualifications that enable Euroculture graduates to embark on doctoral studies. Euroculture alumni have found employment in the following areas:

- » EU institutions
- » International and national organisations (non-governmental, non-profit, foundations)
- » Education and research institutions
- » Embassies and ministries all over the world
- » Media, journalism, publishing, libraries
- » Cultural (management) organisations
- » Foreign trade organisations
- » Political parties, foundations and associations
- » City and regional planning, local and regional cultural projects.